" 'La grippe," the most destructive and wide spread plague of modern times, is caused by a microbe of great power and v.tality." So Dr. W. Phelon, of Chicago, says and be further estimates that it will depopulate the entire earth. "These microbes are." he says, "on the increase, and returning annually in innumerable swarms, will, unless absolutely checked, prove scourge more terrible in its ravages, more extensive in its swath of destruction than any plague or pestilence ever recorded in this world's history."

were extensive and murderous. Already this spring the pest has stricken down almost as many victims in a few weeks as during all last year. Before the disease disaspears the death list will be far longer than that of 1890 and I predict that the loss of life 1892 will be still greater. It cannot be otherwise. The bacilli came in millions last year; this time their number is greatly more ased, and so it will continue, until, unless sudder ly checked, the plague will strike down its victims, not in scattered cases, but in millions. It will become a universal dread -a terror more feared that smallpox or the Napier 1 atent Wagon cholera-more f ared than any other Tongue Support for Yavapai disease, because it will be irresistable in its widespread sweep of destruction. Californians are original in their methods of advertising their state "California on Wheels" made a trip of two seasons through the eastern states and was visited by thousands of people An "Orange Carnival," consisting of an immense display of this valuable product of southern California, was opened in Chicago a few evenings since and was visited by 22,000 people the first night Among the various unique representations made from oranges, was the Los Angeles court house in minature. The display is a big one, comprosing tweive carloads of oranges and lemon, besides a vast amount of floral and plant decorations. It is one of the most original advertisements of a section of country ever attempted.
